WRECKERS FIND DEAD MAN

Crew on Way to Smashup Discover the Remains of a Despondent Shepherd.

(Special to The Herald-Republic.)
Ogden, Sept. 20.—One car was badly demolished and three cars derailed yesterday at Ogden, a little station west of Carlin. No one was injured, but several passenger trains were delayed.
In going to the wreck to aid in straightening out matters, the section crew at Ogden discovered the body of a man lying in the center of the track. He had been dead for several hours and was killed by a passing train.
Investigation developed the fact that the corpse was that of Joseph A. Vancollias, a sheep herder, who had been on a protracted spree for some time. He had threatened to commit suicide at Ogden for several days, and had made an attempt. He is supposed to have either jumped under or fallen from a train. His remains were turned over to the authorities and his friends and relatives have not yet been located.

BANKS' MILLINERY STORE UNDER NEW MANAGEMENT

F. C. Bassett, Jr., assumes the management of the Banks' millinery store and has installed many new features. The store is located in the First ward, and places this company in the foremost ranks of the millinery retail business in the city.

At the opening of the new styles this week Mr. Bassett has demonstrated his ability to present the correct modes in millinery with the exclusiveness that has long characterized this concern.
Every attention was given to the display of the models shown as portrayed, many of the models shown being imported Parisian effects from the fashionable French designers. The selection of clever American pattern hats and handsome tailored styles represented the creation of the millinery world—from the elaborate creation for theatre and party to the practical styles for street and utility wear. The store room has recently been remodeled and is now a model of modern millinery displays, stocks selected for the modest and discriminating tastes. The opening bears out the phrase much advertised by the company—"Exclusive Millinery."
